

FAASTeam presents:

Aging Pilots & Aircraft and Celebrating a Decade of Sport Pilot/Light Sport Aircraft

The information in this seminar is sure to be of interest to all pilots ... young or old.

As the baby-boomers get older, so does the average age of the General Aviation pilot pool. Have you ever wondered when a pilots age becomes a safety risk? No pilot ever want to believe he's too old to fly. And have you ever given thought about the average age of our GA aircraft "legacy" fleet? Just like us aging humans, aging airplanes require an increasing amount of "health care."

Here are some great presentations that discuss what to look for and provide you with some suggestions for improving GA safety margins as us pilots and our airplanes get older.

First, Lead FAASTeam Representative Earl Jobson will offer a presentation on the relationships between aging pilots and flying. He will include proficiencies, currencies and a personal minimums checklists of limitations.

Then, FAASTeam Representative Mike Baxter will continue the discussion by introducing parameters associated with aging aircraft. Finally, FAASTeam Representative Chad Hesterman will provide an enlightening discussion regarding the 10th anniversary of the FAA's groundbreaking sport pilot/sport aircraft regulations. The discussion will include how the
